

Sarah,

I just wanted to tell you (and all of the St Ambrose School people) -- How proud I was last night at the Siena game. When I saw Ms. Viola practicing singing the National Anthem with our small group of students, I was worried. This small group of kids were going into this huge stadium and singing in front of 5,500 people, without any backup band --- WOW !

When the M.C. announced that "Please stand for our National Anthem - to be sung by the students from St Ambrose Catholic School in Latham, NY" - I had chills running up and down my spine. They marched out - looked up at the flag - put their hands over their hearts (you could hear a pin drop at The Times Union Ctr.) -- With their Angelic voices -- they sang LOUD & STRONG and didn't miss a note.

I was never so proud of my Grandson Luke and of our little (but soo important) St Ambrose School.

All the stress in the world today, disappeared for those few treasured minutes with those kids.

I am proud of being a St Ambrose School Papa.

Love,

John Estep
